a) Description about Wikipedia and it's features

Wikipedia is a free, open content online encyclopedia created through the collaborative effort of a community of users known as Wikipedians. Anyone registered on the site can create an article for publication; registration is not required to edit an article. Wikipedia is only a non-commercial site of the top ten.

Basic features of a Wikipedia

- 1) Create a page.
- 2) Edit a page .
- 3) Link between pages.

b) Creating Account on Wikipedia.

Steps are given below:-

If you decide to create an account, the process is very streamlined. You will need to select a username and a password. But that is only information that is required. You have the option to supply an email address, which is needed to receive email notification or reset your password if you lose it. You can see the “create Account” below.

c) Create a page

To contribute to a Wiki, you'll start by creating a page. All pages have a title and text. Unlike pages of a normal website, you won't need to know any code to contribute content here. You can write and format text on a Wiki page like you would an email.

When you're done, all you have to do is click "Submit" to save the page and it can immediately be read by anyone.

d) Edit a page

Published pages can be edited by anyone that reads them. If, for example, you notice that a page created by someone else contains inaccurate/outdated information, you can open the editing screen and correct that information directly. Just “Submit”, and the page's contents will update immediately.

The image consists of three screenshots illustrating the steps to edit a wiki page in Backlog, connected by red arrows indicating the flow of the process.
